

KILL WOMAN AND ESCAPE

Murder and Robbery Done by Two Italians in 15 Minutes.

SON OUT ONLY THAT TIME

Concerned in Many Police Cases, She Was Going to Italy—"Too Many Friends," Husband Says.

Two young Italians called at the apartment of Mrs. Jennie Marante, No. 224 Catharine street, at 11 o'clock yesterday morning, saying they wished to look at her furniture, which she had advertised she wished to dispose of before returning with her two children to Italy. Her son Peter, fourteen years old, left the rooms to heat carpets on the roof, and when he returned, fifteen minutes later, he found his mother dead from strangulation.

She was lying face downward on the bed. A towel and a rope had been used; also a stick to make the rope tight about the neck. It was later found, however, that the woman's death was the result of strangulation by fingers. Some money from under the lounge had disappeared.

Her hands and feet were tied. Earrings had been torn from her ears.

When her son returned to the room her body was still warm. He struggled to unfasten the towel and then ran screaming down Catharine street. Patrons Thomas McGahey and Joseph Gates, of the Oak street station, were at the corner. They went to the apartment and were soon joined by Central Office detectives.

The police say the woman was married to Domenico Pellicciari, a wood carver, but had not lived with him for a number of years. She was thirty-five years old. The apartment, they say, has been the scene of frequent serious quarrels, and the woman had been a witness at court in some of them.

She had on deposit in the Guarini & Capodella Italian Bank, at No. 23 New Bowery, $5,330, the last deposit having been made by her on Monday, June 12. She had been saving money faithfully in the same institution for nine years.

At the Oak street station Peter described the two men suspected of the crime as about twenty-five and twenty-eight years old, each about 5 feet 6 inches tall, one wearing a soft black hat and black mustache, the other a gray cap and around his neck a red handkerchief. Both were dressed in dark suits.

The woman had been living in three small rooms with her son Peter. Her daughter Mary, ten years old, was being brought up by a woman at No. 28 Baxter street.

On May 23 the apartment was the scene of a shooting affair, when Peter Bagilla, now in the Tombs, wounded William Cox, who is still in the hospital in a serious condition. Six months ago two men were stabbed in her rooms, one seriously.

"There was always trouble in her house," said a small girl, who lived on the floor above. "She was always being robbed or something."

The body was taken to the morgue, where an autopsy will be made to-day. Coroner Feinberg yesterday took charge of the case. The boy was taken to Inspector Russell at Headquarters to tell his story. He is being held as a witness.

Peter took the detectives to his father at No. 8 Park street, where the man made a brief statement.

"I have not spoken to my wife in twelve years," he said. "She had too many friends, and I had either to kill her or let her alone."

The police and the coroner satisfied themselves that the man had not been near his wife for many years and did not detain him.

PRAISES TARIFF BOARD

National Association Makes Report to President.

President Taft has received the report of the National Tariff Commission Association upon the Tariff Board, made after an investigation of that board, under authorization of the President and with the concurrence of the board itself.

The investigation was conducted by a committee composed of prominent American manufacturers, the main purpose of the inquiry being to learn whether the organization and methods of the Tariff Board were adapted to obtaining the practical results sought. A large amount of time and study was devoted to the investigation, the commission having been at work since the autumn of 1909.

Of the fourteen schedules contained in the tariff the board is at work investigating four. The investigation of the wool and woollen schedule is far advanced; that on paper and pulp about 80 per cent completed, on chemicals about 40 per cent completed, and the schedule on cotton manufactures about 33 per cent.

The board is preparing a "glossary" as to twelve of the fourteen schedules, which will show as to each important article the kind of material, history and development of the industry, geographical distribution of the industry, technical description of product and of processes employed, uses for consumption of further manufacture, statistics of production, existing duty and ad valorem equivalent and previous duties and ad valorem equivalents.

The committee finds that full co-operation with the board has been afforded by the manufacturers and that the present board is well adapted for its work.

CHASE FOR 'PEANUTS' ENDS

Swindler Captured After a Long Sojourn in Canada.

USED MAILS TO DEFAUD

Extradition Treaty Fails to Cover Case, but Uncle Sam Has Man Deported.

Herbert F. Robinson, known to New York as "Peanuts" Robinson, for many years a successful schemer in parting easy investors from their superfluous funds, was safely delivered yesterday into the keeping of agents of the Department of Justice after a long, safe and joyful sojourn in Canada. A new trick of the Department of Justice to get a fugitive from justice out of the Canadian realm, though the offence be not extraditable, landed Robinson in this city, and he was promptly taken to Stillwell, Minn., where he will serve a two-year term for using the mails to defraud.

The activities of "Peanuts" date back about ten years. He was arrested three times in Chicago for swindling by misusing the mails, and served two short prison terms. His experience, however, that money could be obtained easily by means of a plausible and attractive get-rich-quick scheme made it impossible for him to keep out of the net. With four other kindred spirits, he started in 1904 the Edward A. Vaughn Company, in Minneapolis, which solicited from thousands of people money for investment in the grain market.

No returns were ever made to the investor, and soon complaints began to pour in upon the authorities. The gang received some tip on the pending investigation and disappeared before the indictment was returned. E. A. Vaughn was caught in Denver and served fifteen months. Herbert F. Robinson, John L. Lane and Frank E. Holliday were found in this city, engaged in launching a new scheme, and they were taken to St. Paul for trial. They were fined $5,000 each and sentenced to two years in prison.

"Peanuts" fought his sentence and appealed from it. He was released on bail, and came to New York to plan new and still more profitable enterprises than the one so rudely disturbed by the authorities. When the time of the affirmation of sentence by the higher court drew near he crossed the border to Canada, and directed his business in this city from Montreal.

The extradition treaty between Canada and the United States does not mention the crime of using the mails in a scheme to defraud, and "Peanuts" felt himself in absolute security. The agents of the Department of Justice found, however, that the Canadian laws for immigration, under the caption of "Prohibited Classes," provided for the deportation of "persons who committed any crime involving moral turpitude," and they applied to the immigration authorities in Canada to have "Peanuts" deported.

"Peanuts" had plenty of money and fought this step with all his power, but the writ of habeas corpus was dismissed by the Canadian courts, and as soon as he was brought across the border Uncle Sam's agents took charge of him.

BURGLARS CART OFF A SAFE

Richmond Hill Men Stored Silver in It Before Going Abroad.

Some time within the last week burglars entered the home of George H. Wicke, a wealthy ribbon manufacturer, on Metropolitan avenue, Richmond Hill, and carried away a good sized safe, in which Mr. Wicke had placed all his valuables and silverware when he closed the house and sailed for Europe with his family a month ago. Mr. Wicke was believed to be somewhere in Germany. The contents of the safe were said to be worth several thousand dollars.

To-day the watchman went into the house and, finding the rear door open, made a hurried search. He found everything in its proper place until he came to the closet where the safe had been placed. This was empty. He immediately informed the police, and detectives were placed on the case.

The police said a crowbar was used to open the door and that there must have been more than one man on the job, as the safe was too heavy for one man to carry. There were no traces of wagon wheels near the house, so the safe must have been carried some distance.

READY FOR CAR ROWDIES

Police to Have Hundred Men on the Lookout To-day.

Captain Hughes, in charge of the "strong arm" squad at Police Headquarters, has completed arrangements for suppressing rowdiness at public places of recreation and on the cars of the transportation lines to-morrow. The squad has been increased from fourteen to one hundred, selected from the best trained men in the department.

The attitude taken by the magistrates in sending offenders guilty of disorderly conduct in the cars and at junction points to jail and to the stone pile has so pleased the officers of the Police Department that they decided to augment the squad sufficiently to cope with any emergency.

The Police Department has acted in close touch with the transportation companies, and men will be assigned to various points on the roads, a strong force to be detailed at junction points, where uprisings have occurred in the past. Men will be detailed to duty at the Fort Lee ferry, Astoria ferry, College Point ferry, North Beach ferry, Van Cortlandt Park, Clason Point and at stations on the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company.

A strong force will be sent to Woodside Junction, Long Island, where rowdiness has been rampant on several Sundays recently. They will have an automobile at their disposal, and will keep in constant communication with the numerous picnic grounds in the vicinity where trouble is likely to arise.

SAYS MAID STOLE JEWELS

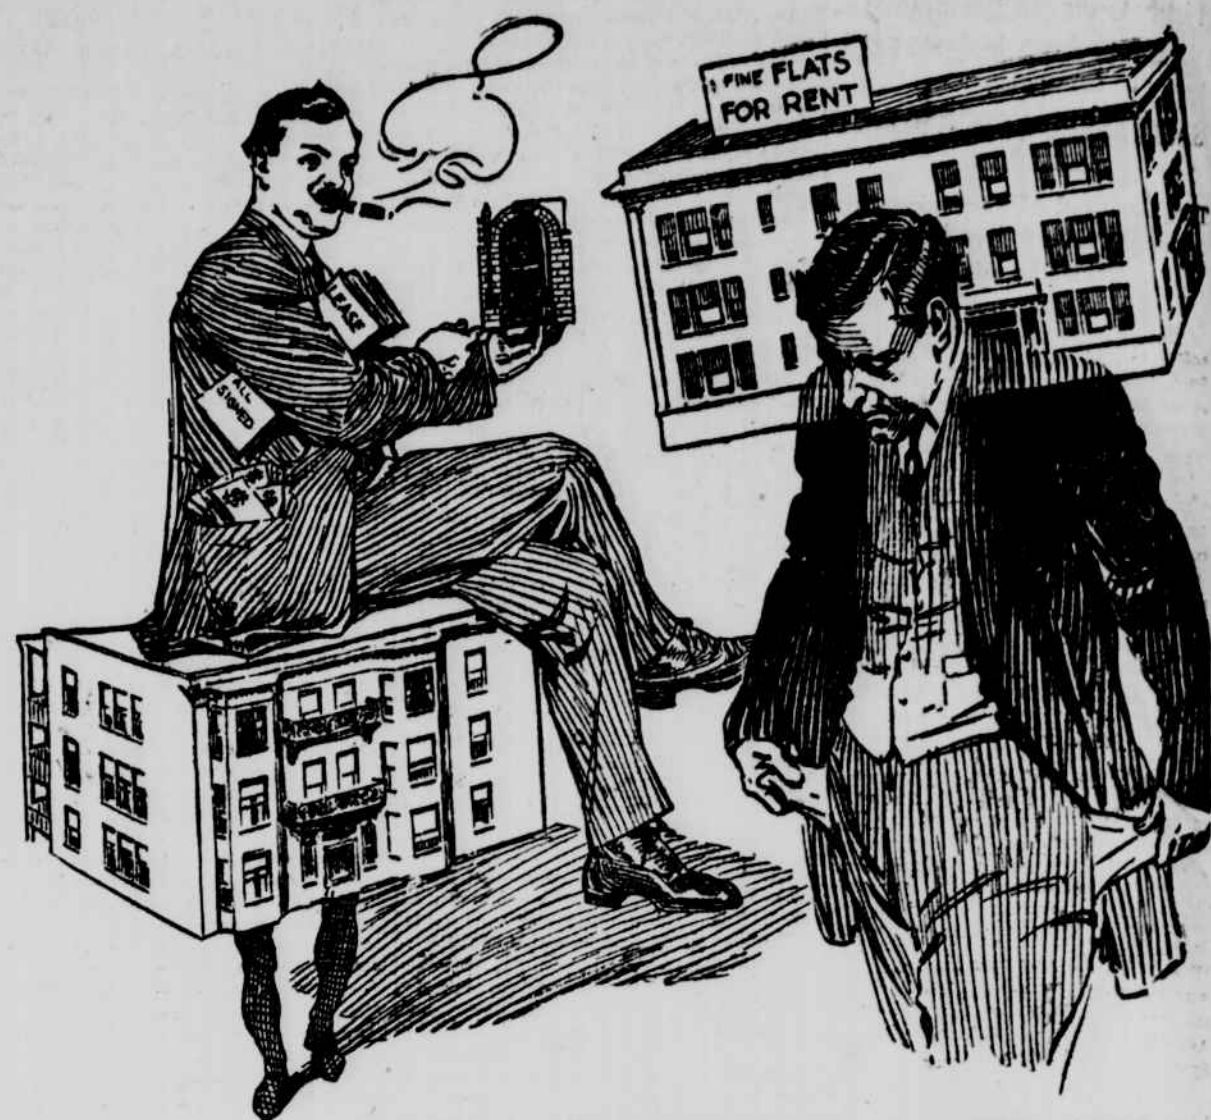

Wife of General T. L. James Appears to Prosecute Former Servant.

Mrs. Florence James, wife of General Thomas L. James, president of the Lincoln National Bank, appeared yesterday against Jennie Jarvis in the Harlem court, and charged her with stealing clothing and jewelry valued at $168. The prisoner waived examination and refused to answer any questions. She was held in $1,000 bail for trial.

She was Mrs. James's maid at her summer home at Highwood, N. J., up to a week ago. After the negro woman disappeared, Mrs. James discovered her loss. With the aid of her servants she found Jennie at No. 129 West 135th street on Friday night. After explaining her story to the police of the West 125th street station, two detectives were sent around to the 135th street address and the woman's arrest followed.

BANKER ENTERTAINS EMPLOYEES.

About seven hundred employees of the National City Bank, of New York City, with their wives and friends, were entertained yesterday by Frank A. Vanderbilt, president of the bank, at his home, Beachwood, at Scarborough, N. Y. The employees of the bank have a City Bank Club, and this was the fourth year they have been the president's guests. The club presented Mr. Vanderbilt with a silver loving cup.

Kewanee Steel Firebox Boilers

Make Waiting Lists for Your Apartments.

There are Ninety Solid Miles of fine apartment buildings in Chicago that are heated by the Kewanee All-Steel Firebox Boiler and nearly every building has a waiting list.

In all the other great cities in the west the same condition exists. The presence of that boiler holds up the renting value of these buildings. Fancy interior decorations, geographical location and nickel-plated towel racks have ceased to be the leading factors.

Landlords have cast aside the silk-lined bunk and are helping tenants to understand that their comfort in that building depends absolutely on the heating apparatus, and you can't rent a flat in those western cities unless you can truthfully answer "yes" to the question: "Is this building heated by a Kewanee Firebox Boiler?"

The fact that an apartment house is heated by that boiler makes it desirable at the outset. It covers a multitude of sins. People will overlook countless little inconveniences that exist if you can tell them that the building is equipped with the Kewanee boiler. And it is definitely established that you can get better prices in the sale of apartment buildings if that boiler is in the basement.

Old fashioned heating apparatus has seen its day just the same as the luxury of burning witches in Salem, Mass., or lassoing buffalo on State street, Chicago. Cast iron heating boilers are as much a drug on the market as the ill-smelling furnace. The Kewanee Steel Firebox Boiler has been the means of educating people in the scientific way to rent an apartment.

People never used to care a tinker's dam about the heating apparatus and they never even inquired. But today when they start out to rent an apartment they go into the basement first and see whether the Kewanee Boiler is there. That's the preliminary step and the most important one.

The Kewanee Boiler is made of solid steel plate. It is not built in sections and joints which crack and leak without the regular two weeks notice. It is the one heating boiler in the world which insurance agents insure without question or argument. It has a great big roomy fire pot and a copious combustion chamber and will burn any kind of fuel you can dig up. It is economical and safe and sure and so guaranteed.

The Kewanee Boiler records show that the average repairs sold per boiler per year is less than one dollar. If any maker of a cast-iron boiler ever dares to make such a statement for his product, tell him he's crazy with the heat and you'll get away with it.

In Chicago 200,000 school children are kept warm in the winter time by Kewanee boilers. The ninety miles of apartment buildings heated by this boiler, house more than 400,000 people, and when you add the hotels, seminaries, warehouses, office buildings, dormitories, clubs, churches and other structures, this boiler is responsible for the comfort of many thousands of souls in that one city alone.

Nobody ever has to go to bed to keep warm if he lives in a building heated by this boiler. We have been making it for twenty-five years and every one we have made is going yet. It will outlast your building. You buy one in a life-time. And you don't have to beggar yourself or lose damage suits because of inefficiency.

It will pay every owner of an apartment building in New York to investigate this boiler. It looks like a locomotive. It is built like one. It wipies every other style of heating apparatus off the map. If you doubt it, look it up. We have established a boiler yard in New York city and can supply you on a day's notice.

New-York Tribune's Towns and Cities Contest

Beginning Monday, June 26th

WHAT TOWNS OR CITIES DO THESE PICTURES REPRESENT?

Do not send answers until close of contest. It is not necessary to send the pictures. Only the answers are required.

Tribune's New Pictorial Contest Is Announced To-day

TODAY The Tribune announces the new Pictorial Contest, which is to begin on June 26.

This new competition will be a TOWNS and CITIES CONTEST, and will consist of a series of illustrations representing the names of towns and cities located in the United States and Canada.

Needless to say that this new contest will prove as interesting and instructive a puzzle picture competition as any ever inaugurated by a daily newspaper.

Sample pictures of the contest are published herewith, and all who desire to contest are requested to note these pictures carefully in order that they may understand the manner in which the contest is to be conducted.

Each day for about 65 days The Tribune will publish three illustrations, cartoons or other representations of the name of a town or city similar to the samples and their answers as shown herewith. The Contest Manager and two representatives of The Tribune are now engaged in selecting a large list of names of towns and cities, and they will be portrayed by pictures in such a manner as to provide amusement and education for the thousands of Tribune Puzzle Picture solvers.

The competition is particularly arranged for every member of the family—man, woman and child. All may take part in this fascinating feature and compete for the attractive prizes that will be awarded.

There will be three Everitt "30" automobiles, costing $1,450 each.

One $1,100 artistically hand carved Krakauer Player Piano.

A $750 Christmas Player Piano, and a $650 Francis Bacon Player Piano.

In addition to the grand Player Pianos, there will be four more grand piano prizes. Then there will be handsome sets of furniture, trips and many other valuable prizes, all of which will be announced very shortly in The Tribune.

The competition is a unique one. Aside from the thoughts of the rewards, the very nature of the contest makes it fascinating. Every one knows something about towns and cities, and every one wants to know more about them.

Don't think because you have not travelled extensively or that you are less familiar than others with the names of towns and cities that you will be handicapped. The contest will be so simple and easy that even school boys and girls will be able to follow and answer the pictures in nearly all instances.

However, the wide range of names of towns and cities from which the answers are now being selected will make it impossible for any person, no matter how learned, to know them all. In fact, it will be a contest where too much knowledge of certain towns or cities may be a dangerous thing, as it may lead the contestants to assume without careful investigation that the first solution arrived at is the correct one. Therefore those who know less about towns and cities will probably be the most careful in submitting their answers, and will no doubt stand a better chance of winning a reward than those who think they know the most.

The announcement of this new competition has already given promise of exciting the keenest rivalry everywhere. Thousands of Tribune readers have already expressed their eagerness for the opening, and it is anticipated that the record of entries will even eclipse the highly successful Proverb Contest, recently closed, and the winners of which will be announced within the near future.

No one should hesitate to prepare to enter this entertaining and instructive competition, as it will require but a very little of one's leisure time each day to make out the names of the towns and cities that will be illustrated.

Parents should encourage their children to enter, as they, too, have an equal opportunity to share in the rewards that will be given to the successful contestants, and it will be quickly seen that the instructive features of the contest will prove of lasting value to these young minds. Therefore advise your boys and girls to join the contest in the beginning, and encourage them to aim for one of the big rewards.

Keep in mind that the first of the official contest pictures will appear on Monday, June 26, and thereafter three pictures will appear in The Tribune each day.

Keep in mind also that there will be a long list of prizes and that the value of each will be worth your while in contesting for them.

Make up your mind to enter with the very beginning and capture one of the grand prizes. In that way you will have ample time to devote to the solving of the puzzle pictures as they appear from day to day.

Get ready to start NOW. Order The Tribune of your nearest newsdealer and tell him that you want The Tribune EVERY DAY.
